The 2020 National Geography Challenge

I. Event Information

Event Title: National Geography Challenge 2020

"Pag-unlad: Para Kanino at Para Saan?"

Organizer: Junior Philippine Geographical Society – UP Diliman (JPGS-UPD)

Date & Time: 07 March 2020, 6 AM to 7 PM

Venue: NUPAG Assembly Hall, University of the Philippines Diliman

II. National Geography Challenge Profile

The National Geography Challenge (NGC) is an annual event that has been conducted by the Junior Philippine Geographical Society – UP Diliman (JPGS-UPD) since 2012. This event's main objectives are as follows:

- To promote the distinct discipline of geography and its importance and relevance to the society;
- To provide a venue for alternative learning of the discipline of geography outside the four walls of the classroom;
- To develop geographic literacy and social awareness towards the participants;
- To foster camaraderie and develop leadership skills and potential among the youth; and
- To encourage active participation of students and teachers.

These purposes are sought through various competitions such as the Poster Making Contest, Impromptu Speech Contest, Short Film Contest, Photo Essay Contest, and the Geography Quiz Bowl catered for students from Grades 9 to 12. In these competitions, the participants' geographical knowledge is challenged while their understanding and valuation of the discipline is developed.

This coming 2020, the 8th National Geography Challenge will have a theme entitled "Pag-unlad: Para Kanino at Para Saan?" that features Development from the sub-discipline of Economic Geography as its primary topic of interest.

III. Theme

Economic Geography "is a sub-discipline of geography and a growing field of study in economics that is concerned with the spatial configuration of firms, industries, and nations within the emerging global economy in all its manifestations" (Clark, Feldman, & Gertler, 2000, pp. viii). Historically, economic geography deals with spacing of settlements, optimization of commerce, and geographical structure of trade; nevertheless, today, it is also interested in explaining the breaking down of physical barriers through globalization, growth and decline of regions, and uneven development within and outside a particular locality (Clark et al., 2000). Economic Geography is an approach in which a specific matter of importance, such as development could be readily understood.

Development is conventionally defined as a growth in the economy or more commonly called as "economic growth" (Hartwick & Peet, 2009). Economic growth means achieving a higher economic level in terms of producing higher quantities of goods and services (for consumption) and a larger total income of the national account (Hartwick & Peet, 2009). However, economic growth can still occur without problematising poverty and inequality, since the economy can still be massive while neglecting all the kinds of people who participated in its advancement (Hartwick & Peet, 2009). When all the increase just goes to a few, economic growth becomes an avenue for a wider gap of inequality and a greater uneven development within a country. Therefore, economic growth does not necessitate development. What does it mean then to be truly developed?

According to Hartwick & Peet (2009, pp. 1), development means making a better life for everyone, an essential egalitarian ethic that states "a better life for all." Directly quoting the authors below, they described development as ...interested not so much in the growth of an economy but rather the conditions under which production occurs and the results that flow from it. If growth wrecks the environment, and if growth destroys working life, it is not development. Development looks too at what is produced. If growth merely produces more Wal-Mart junk rather than schools or clinics, it is not development. Development attends to the social consequences of production. If growth merely concentrates wealth in the hands of a few, it is not development. If growth is the outcome of market processes that no one controls—although a few people benefit—it is not development. Development is optimistic and utopian. Development means changing the world for the better. Development means starting change at the bottom rather than the top (Hartwick & Peet, 2009, pp. 2).

Hence, development always includes and never excludes anyone, regardless of class, religion, race, age, and gender. In the lens of geography, the discrepancies that arise from the different kinds and levels of development—the domination of certain societies to the sprawling ones who want to achieve better development (players), and the spatiality (where) and context of it all—is what the discipline pursues to understand (Hartwick & Peet, 2009).

The theme for the 2020 National Geography Challenge, which is entitled "Pag-unlad: Para Kanino at Para Saan? (Development: For Whom and For What?)" is deeply rooted with the idea of inclusive development in the Philippine context. Along with that, the theme aims to challenge the idea of "growth" that always come hand-in-hand with "development." Why does growth does not always necessitate development? In trying to develop, what are the kinds of societies, and who are the people being left behind? Indeed, for whom and for what is the Philippines developing for? Furthermore, the theme seeks to answer these questions through the eyes of Filipino youth using Geography as their lens in viewing these contentions.

IV. General Guidelines

1. Mechanics

- a. A maximum of two (2) participants per school with only one (1) entry per participant shall be allowed to join the contest.
- b. This competition consists of two parts:
 - i. Photography
 - ii. Essay

The rationale behind dividing this contest into two parts while making sure that the participants would show up to write their actual essays is to avoid ghostwritten entries. As an academic organization, JPCS-LPD believes that fraudulent actions should not be permitted to flourish in the academe, much more in any institution. Any proven fraudulent action or a switch of participants from the first part (photography) to the second part (essay) will be duly disqualified for any given reason. If such a case will arise, the validity of the reason and the decision to allow (a) participants to continue will be deliberated and decided upon by the NGC 2020 Team.

b. Photography

- a. There would be strictly no walk-ins for this competition. The specific theme and subject for the photo will be e-mailed after an online registration is received by the organizers. Participants and coaches can submit their online registration forms with their down payment on or before February 28, 2020 (for this competition only) to give a one-day leeway to those who want to bid their entry on the day of the deadline.

- d. The photo must be submitted at least one (1) week prior to the official date of the event via e-mail at jpgs.ngc@gmail.com (on or before February 29, 2020 at 5:00 PM) to give time for the organizers to release the official entries online.
- e. No late submissions will be accepted, and the participants can only submit their official entry once. If there were a case such that two different entries by the same participant have been submitted, the first entry that is sent will be acknowledged by the NGC team as the participant's official entry to the competition.
- f. The photo must be in a digital format with a file extension of .png, only.
- g. The participants are allowed to use any camera device (such as mobile, DSLR, and other digital devices) they have to capture a potential entry to the competition.
- h. The photo must be taken anywhere in the country (The Philippines) only, as seen fit by the participant and/or his/her coach.
- i. The entry must be a raw photo; it must not be altered, modified, photoshopped, and/or post-processed by any post-processing application online or offline.
- j. The caption of the picture for the online release will be the title of the photo that will also be sent via e-mail.
- k. All references used, including subjects who consented to be captured in the official entry (if there were) those who helped in the making of the photo, the type of camera used, name of the participant, coach, school, etc. must be credited in the body of the email that will be sent to the NGC team. This portion will serve as a sub-caption for the online release of the official entries.
- l. All entries will be posted on the official JPGS-UPD Facebook page for public viewing to identify the People's Choice Awardee.
- m. All submitted entries will be given certificates of participation and/or recognition.
- n. The basis for the People's Choice Award is the social influence criteria, which consists of the likes, views, and shares of the entries in the event's official Facebook Page (National Geography Challenge Facebook Page, facebook.com/geogcha).
- o. Any photo found to have inappropriate content will be DISQUALIFIED. This inappropriateness includes but not limited to:
 - i. Sexually explicit or suggestive, profane, and/or pornographic content.
 - ii. Discriminatory, violent, and/or derogatory use of terms to any ethnic, racial, gender, age, professional, religious, etc. group.

- q. JPGS shall have the rights to use the submitted photos for their own purposes such as talks, events, and sessions, among others while giving credits to the original makers of the videos.
- r. JPGS shall have the right to disqualify entries which do not adhere to the guidelines and specified requirements of this competition.

- s. The NGC 2020 Team shall have the right to modify the guidelines and specifications or impose new ones whenever necessary. Such changes shall be effective immediately upon notice which will be disseminated by means of posting on the National Geography Challenge and the Junior Philippine Geographic Society-UP Diliman

b.2. Essay

1. The essay portion of the competition shall take place on the actual date of the event. Only those who have submitted their official photo entries to the NGC 2020 Team via e-mail are allowed to compete in this part of the contest.
2. The subject and/or question for the first part (photography) of the competition shall be the same for the essay part.
3. The participants are therefore given the time to prepare how to write their essay even before the actual essay competition starts. They can research to supplement their essays if they deem necessary, or they can write their essays through drawing to their own experiences. The participants are free to be as informative and as creative as they possibly can, given that those who will be in the essay part of the competition are the ones who actually took their official photo entries.
4. Maximum of 120 minutes are given to the participants to finish their essays. All writing materials are provided by the organizers, including ballpens, papers, and scratch papers.
